

Join us for the 2017 Complete Streets Summit!

Thursday, March 30th, 8:30 AM - 12:30 PM

The Sustainability Institute at Molloy College

7180 Republic Airport in Farmingdale

This coalition is a contingent of chambers of commerce, civic associations, local governments, engineering and professional trade groups, transit advocates and members of the public who want safe streets for all modes of traffic. The group looks to coordinate Complete Streets planning efforts, communicate on finding opportunities for local projects, act as a clearinghouse for information and lobby with a united voice for safe roadways.

Past Complete Streets Summits, held at the Sustainability Institute at Molloy College in Farmingdale, have been gatherings of government leaders, planners, engineers, nonprofits and other community stakeholders who support policy changes to design roadways for all uses – not just automobiles. The Summit was a chance to remind participants of the campaign's significance.

"If we're going to have a vibrant economy and a safe environment for all of us, then Complete Streets is part of the solution"
-Suffolk County Executive Steve Bellone
